SOLDIERS BONUS BIG PORTION DEBT WESTERN STATES

Together With Highway Improvement Figures Approximately 85 Per Cent of Indebtedness of 13 States.

CHICAGO, Dec 20—Soldiers' bonus and highway improvement account for approximately eighty-five percent of the $378,685,115.12 authorized indebtedness of thirteen middle western and northwest states, according to reports of state treasurers from the various states. Of this amount, $787,735,115 is represented in bonds or certificates of indebtedness already issues

Voters of Illinois, Michigan, Missouri Kansas, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa, and Ohio have authorized the payment of $207,705,000 to veterans of the war, a portion of which has already been distributed. Illinois, Michigan and Missouri have provided for a system of good highways representing an expenditure of $115,000,000.

North Dakota, Nebraska, Indiana, Kentucky and Oklahoma have no outstanding indebtedness for the payment of a bonus or the improvement of highways, although in some of these states highway improvement funds are obtained from the general revenue fund by legislative appropriation.

The reports reveal that the greater part of the indebtedness has been incurred since the world war. The part highways played in the prosecution of the war is attributed by some officials to the increased activity in road developments.

Nebraska has no state indebtedness but the bonded obligation of the counties is $73,760,187. Indiana reports outstanding stock certificates in the amount of $5,615.12, which were issued in 1845-46 for canal development purposes. Though the certificates are believed lost, this amount is still carried on the books as an obligation.

Farmers in North Dakota figured that in the state's indebtedness, the total showing the sale of $3,070,000 real estate bonds, the money being distributed to residents in farm loans The Industrial Commission was empowered to sell a further issue of $10,000,000 for this purpose by vote of the people June, last.

The indebtedness further shows a $2,000,000 Bank of North Dakota Capitaly stock bond issue together with an issue of $1,575,000 mill and elevator bonds and $202,000 outstanding, which are known as "old bonds"

An Aged Couple.

Application for help was made to the Red Cross office yesterday by an old couple living just outside of the city. They desire transportation expersons to a niece and nephew living in another town. Once there, they will be properly cared for.

The old gentleman has both arms one leg and two ribs have been broken. In addition to this he is in poor health. His wife, whose physical condition is scarcely any better, has been trying to work at a local factory for the support of herself and husband. In order to get to her work on time she is compelled to get up at 3 o'clock in the morning. Her health is in such a condition that she cannot long endure the strain of work

These worthy old people do not ask support; they only want a few dollars to take them to their relations where they will be shielded from the hardships of the world. It is for such purposes as this that the Empty Stocking Fund has been created. It is hoped that enough money will be raised to help each of the numerous cases that have been reported to and investigated by Miss Wilhelmine Marx, Red Cross nurse.

BIG PAY DAY AT MINES FRIDAY

More Money To Miners Than Has Been Paid By Local Companies For Some Time.

Friday the miners of this district will receive one of the biggest pay days that they have had in some time, according to Major E. S. Helburn Practically all the mines are running five days per week indicating general prosperity is once more beginning to prevail in this section.

This harbinger of good times is already being felt in other cities now that the price of coal is coming down on account of the larger quantities being mined. The car situation seems to have become better recently on both lines The Southern Railway company obtains its fuel supply from this district which has a beneficial effect on the coal situation in this section.

Major Helburn says that he expects next year to be one of the best for the coal industry. Labor troubles are practically unknown among the local mines, nearly all of them being worked by non-union mines.

Conditions seem to be better in the mining industry in the vicinity of Middlesboro than at other places in the state and in Tennessee, however. The Crown Coal Co., which recently moved its headquarters to this city and reports that its mines at Westbourne and Chevrolet are working only from one to two days per week on account of the scarcity of cars.

PICTURESQUE CHARACTER PASSED WITH DEATH OF MAJOR LACEY

By Associated Press.

RICHMOND, IND., Dec. 20.—Indiana lost one of its most famous characters with the passing on November 11 of Major M. M. Lacey of Fountain City.

Slave smuggler, veteran of the Civil War, chief of police in Richmond, lawyer, and a leader in public welfare, Major Lacey led a most wonderful and exciting life.

His opposition to slavery developed when he was a child living in Fountain City and at the age of eleven years he was one of the "conductors" of the "underground railway system," which smuggled runaway slaves from the Ohio river to Canada.

A brother of Major Lacey is said to have assisted Eliza Harris the original from whom the famous character in "Uncle Tom's Cabin," was adapted, across the Ohio river to Ripley, and then to Fountain City.

Major Lacey's work in connection with the "underground railway," was to help conduct negros who had been brought to Levi Coffin's homestead in Fountain City, to the next station of the system. The Grand Central Station of the system, as Coffin's home was called, was used as a hiding place for approximately 3,000 slaves who passed through to the northward, it has been estimated

The outbreak of the Civil War ended Major Lacey's career as a slave runner, for he immediately enlisted in the Union Army. In 1865 he was commissioned a major in the 60th Indiana Infantry. Following the termination of the struggle, Major Lacey made his home in Richmond, where he served as chief of police from 1869 to 1874. He then went to Washington where he practiced law for some time.

Major Lacey spent his last years at Fountain City. He was senior vice-commander of the Loyal Legion, and a member of the Vicksburg Military Park Commission under Governor W. T. Durbin and Governor J. F. Hanley. He was eighty-seven years old when he died

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—Taxi drivers of New York city have raised a cry against the plan to establish a Taxicab Drivers' Legion of Honor.

By this system the police will keep record of the violations of the taxi chauffeurs and will award a Legion shield to those with clean records. By this shield prospective passengers will know that the driver is to be trusted and hired

But the drivers say the system will work to the benefit of some consistent violators who are lucky enough to escape the eye of the policemen, while the careful driver is liable to lose his shield through a traffic infraction he could not avoid.

OLD SCROOGE UP-TO-DATE

Old Scrooge, the fictitious character portrayed in Dickens' "Christmas Carol," is in evidence in this country today as much as he was in London nearly a century ago. Could the sinister, oppressive incorporeal spirit of greed, selfishness, jealousy and narrow-mindedness be incarnated into human form we would have a perfect resemblance to the loathsome creature of the English writer's imagination.

Evidence of this intangible, yet effective, spirit is omnipresent, especially at this time of year. It is reflected in the words of the person who says: "I don't intend to give any present this Christmas and I don't expect any." Almost invariably an utterance of this nature comes from one who is able to contribute to the happiness of others if his purse strings were only as lax as his conscience. Others there are who give freely merely because it is customary and expected of them.

Another prototype of Scrooge exists in the person who makes a hobby of knocking the public charitable organizations, the religious institutions and moves that are worthy beyond the peradventure of a doubt. To these, nothing is right; everything is based on graft.

There are so many types of the despicable personage that it is impossible to enumerate them.

We believe in going the limit in celebrating Christmas in the old-fashioned way—Christmas tree, holly, mistletoe and everything. As we grow older we can look back over the many joyful Yuletide occasions and realize that they were the happiest days of our lives. The nearest counterfeit to that youthful pleasure can be obtained by entering into the holiday spirit with the children, by forgetting our years and becoming temporarily a member of the glorious realm of childhood.

The man or woman who has reached that stage when they cannot become intoxicated by the blessed spirit of Saint Nicholas is indeed to be pitied.

It is indeed a time for business cares and worries to be forgotten that the spirit of peace and good-will may reign unrestrained.

The true spirit of Christmas is utterly unselfish and all-embracing. Prone are we to forget in buying gifts for friends and relatives those unfortunates to whom Santa Claus is a stranger, poverty-stricken parents who are not able to make him appear real and substantial to their children by a gift-laden Christmas tree.

The Old Scrooge of the story had his awakening; let us hope that in real life he will likewise cease to exist.

ILLNESS OF WALLY REID

Another popular idol has been dashed from the lofty pedestal upon which we had in our minds placed him, on learning of the serious illness of Wallace Reid due to use of narcotics. Coming as it does before the affairs of Arbuckle and Taylor have been forgotten, the news is already causing no little comment.

Movie patrons know that the screen actors are not the ideal characters in real life that they seem in reel life, so why should they allow any affair in their private life becloud their judgment of picture players' artistic talents?

We know that Poe was a drug addict and that his life was doubtless shortened by dissipation, that Dumas, the celebrated French romanticist, was a negro, yet we do not allow prejudice to diminish our admiration of their masterpieces.

It is an established fact that the talented writer or actor, though far from being personally perfect, can create an idealistic character or successfully play a part altogether out of harmony with their own private life.

After all, "The play's the thing."

YOUR HANDICAPS.

Do you enjoy your meals? Or, do you often find eating is a nuisance? Or, if a housewife, cooking is a pest, nuisance, dreaded?

Frank Nayr, philosopher and seeker of original causes, makes a suggestion that probably has occurred to you.

Nayr says: "It's too bad we cannot take in food like a flivver at a filling station, for gasoline. Gasoline, is to the flivver, what food is to us. And the flivver gets exactly the right kind of food—also just enough, neither too much nor too little.

"We humans are eternally eating too much food, or the wrong kind. It is always a puzzle what will agree with us. We feel a craving for corned beef and cabbage or pie or lobster, but there's uncertainty as to whether it will rest easily after it's down.

"The doctors tell us our bodies are machines. When it comes to taking aboard our fuel, we're much inferior to the auto."

Scientists say that bodies adapt themselves to environment—that nature makes additions when needed, or takes away what is no longer needed. A favorite illustration is the blind fish of underground rivers, deprived of eyes because it does not need site. Of the giraffe, which grew a long neck so it could reach the tender leaves at the tops of trees.

Such changes, however, come very slowly. Millions of years, according to scientists.

In the last 25 years, man has changed his ways of living, his environment, more than his ancestors in 25 centuries before.

We are developing so rapidly that nature isn't keeping up with us. Hence our machinery for eating and digesting and nourishing our bodies is inferior to the auto, which we have created more efficient than our own bodies, human machines.

A queer notion, bizzarre yet logical suggests itself. Animals grow fur, which protects them sufficiently against cold. Man keeps warm by artificial heat. However—

You're sitting at home, notice the room is cool. Lie on the floor, you find the air cold. Stand on a chair and you discover plenty of heat up near the ceiling where it doesn't do you any good. If nature is guiding us, she is responsible for this system which has something fundamentally wrong with it.

Genuine efficiency, with our present heating methods, would be intervention by nature to enable us to keep in the warm air by living on the ceilings. Couldn't be? Flies do it.

Unquestionably our bodies are out of date. Nature is lagging, not changing us as fast as our progress and needs require.

No doubt, an idle Congress one of these days will attempt to remedy the situation by legislating against Mother Nature, or at least appointing an expensive investigation committee. At that, it would accomplish about as much as most most of these committees.

KENTUCKY LEGION HEADS MET YESTERADY

By Associated Press.

LOUISVILLE, Dec. 19.—The first annual department convention of the American Legion, department of Kentucky was held here yesterday for the purpose of discussing general plans for the American Legion and obtaining the viewpoint of commanders and other officers of the state in matters effecting the organization. The meeting was called to order by W. C. Wilson, Lexington, state commander at 9 o'clock and continue throughout the day.

The convention modeled after the national conference of department adjutants which was held in Indianapolis, Ind., last week. Brent G. Nunnelley, Louisville, adjutant of the department of Kentucky, represented this state at the Indiana meeting. Post commanders and post adjutants were invited to attend though all members of the American Legion in Kentucky were invited.

In the past the plans outlined at each state convention have been carried out by the department officers not only four times each year and the work of directing the activities of the organization devolved upon the commander and adjutant. The change in policy has been made so that the entire membership of the American Legion in Kentucky will have an opportunity to get together thru their officers and talk over plans for 1923 and thereby give the leaders the advantage of experiences gained in various sections of the state, according to Mr Nunnelley.

THE OUTLOOK

❖ ❖ ❖ ❖ By Berton Braley ❖ ❖ ❖ ❖

There is a bunch of cynics
Who take a view of life
Like medicos in clinics
About to use the knife;
They see naught but diseases
And ills of every style,
'Till not a prospect pleases
And everything is vile!

And if with spirit joyous
We laugh away the pains
And troubles that annoy us,
The cynic then maintains,
In accents far from gentle,
That such an attitude
Is sickly sentimental,
And very, very crude.

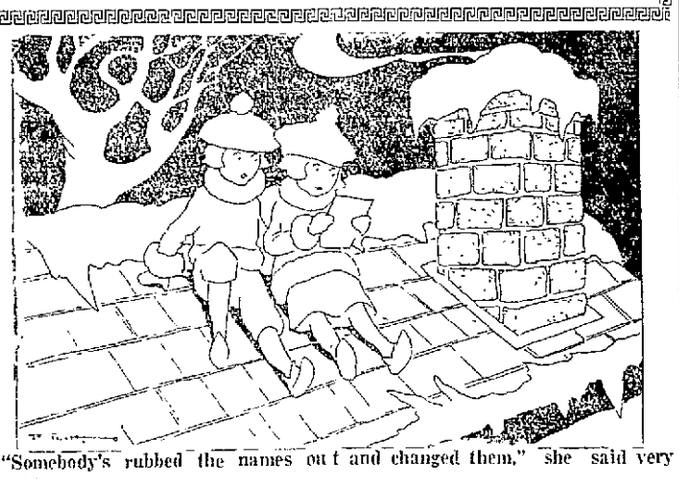
If thinking love and kindness
Are found more often than
Greed, hate and cruel blindness
Within the heart of man—
If that's the cynic's model
Of vain romantic bosh
And sentimental twaddle,
I'm guilty, then, b'gosh!

He sees life bleak—so be it;
He's welcome to his view,
But why ask me to see it
In gloomy colors, too?
Oh, well, I'll let him vent all
His spleen, the dreary claim!
He calls me sentimental,
I'll tell the world I am!

A GOOD WAY TO GET RID OF UNDESIRABLE ARTICLES

Adventures of The Twins

By Olive Roberts Barton



"Somebody's rubbed the names out and changed them," she said very quickly.

The next house the Twins went to was the Weston's.

Nancy and Nick, you know, were out collecting notes for Santa Claus. They would light on a snowy roof like two little birds and Nick would scuttle down the dark chimney while Nancy watched overhead for Tweekanose, the naughty gnome who liked to steal the notes.

"Here are two of them," whispered up Nick when he had scrambled down and Nancy could just hear.

She stopped watching and helped Nick to scramble out, looking as grimy as the Chimney Sweep himself.

Now it isn't nice to read other people's letters, but it was different with Nancy and Nick. Santa Claus told them to be sure to read each letter, as they found it, so that if anything happened and it got lost, they could remember some of the things, at least and Tommy or Dickey or Harry, or Suzzy or Annie or Jane wouldn't be left altogether without things on Christmas morning.

So Nick opened one of the letters and read:

"Dear Santy Klos:

"I want a drum and a horn and a soljer suit and an engin and a baseball and an air gun, and a tunnel and a nife and a fin bug. I hope you are well.

"WENNY WESTON."

"Humph!" declared Nancy. "They're funny things for a girl to want. She never said a word about a doll."

"Oh, listen!" cried Nick. "Here is the other note," and he read:

"Dear Santy.

"Plese sir, I want a doll and a baby buggy and a kitchen cabinet and a new muff and a toy piano and a bracelet.

"WILLIE WESTON."

"Goodness!" scoffed Nick. "A boy wanting things like that!"

Nancy took the notes and looked at them. "Somebody's rubbed the names out and changed them," she said very quickly. "I'll bet you anything it was Tweekanose—the little rascal."

And so it was, my dears.

Nancy fixed the mistake at once.

THE ONE-MAN WOMAN

By Ruth Agnes Abeling.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

The path of KATE WARD had led through the ways of tragedy. In girlhood a quarrel with her mother drove her to run away from home, out into the world, where she met dashing DAN WARD, whom she loved and married. Soon he died and Kate returned to her home to find her mother dead and her father, JUSTIN PARSONS, living alone. Hardly had Kate settled down to her task of caring for him when CHINATOWN ALICE, cheap, loud and gaudy, arrived and announced to Kate that Dan Ward was the father of Alice's child.

GO ON WITH THE STORY

"Kate—child—I wouldn't take it quite that hard."

It was the voice of Justin Parsons. For a moment Kate remained motionless. Then she sat up.

"Oh, but father, you don't know what has happened and how terrible it all seems to me now." Her voice was unsteady still.

"I do know, Kate," he said. "I couldn't help hearing the girl and I do know what it means to you."

"I've lived a long time, child," his voice was very gentle, "and I think I made one woman happy—your mother. Yes," thoughtfully, "I think your mother was a happy woman, happy in her way, Katie."

"Yes, father," Kate's voice was low.

"But, there are worse things a man can do, child—" Justin lapsed into silence.

Finally his voice took up the sentence again. "There are worse things a man can do than be unfaithful to his wife."

Kate started. The sound died on her lips. Justin was talking again, and slowly.

"Man leaves his soul outside sin's gate,
And finds it waiting when he tires
Of carnal pleasures and desires."
But,
Woman, a creature finely spun,
Her body and her soul are one."

"A woman never checks her soul outside, Katie, while she goes on with the dance. Men do."

Silence.

"It's true—Katie," Justin was now speaking, "a good woman is a one-man woman. She's like a fine dog, responsive only to her master. And she will suffer the affection of only that one man. The very inborn fineness of her would prevent any other code.

"But a man, Katie," continued Justin, "even a man who is a good father and a good husband can find some pleasure in the lips and eyes of many women, while he loves only one.

"God forbid that any man should say he loved all of the women he had kissed after promising to be faithful to one!" the old man continued. "It is just a fault that men have, Katie—not all men, but many of them—and women haven't. And we respect them, and trust them and love them because they haven't.

"Dan—I didn't know him. Never have seen the face of the man my own girl loved!" As her father's hand closed over hers, Kate Ward dropped on her knees in front of him, her lovely face raised toward his.

"I know Dan loved me," she said earnestly, "I know he did.

"And father," her voice broke as she went on, "I'm still the girl who dropped from her bedroom window one night twelve years ago and walked out into a world as black as the night the window opened into. I'm still the girl who was sitting on a park bench, deserted and discouraged, when she met the man she married.

"I came back here," Kate continued, "because I knew of the doubt he must have had, though he never told me. I felt that he would know that my soul, too, had come all of the way back to the sweet, clean place it started from.

"I wanted him to know that, because I loved him as no man ever was loved." Kate had walked to the window and once more was looking out toward the open road of 12 years ago. "Oh, if I thought he didn't know and didn't care and hadn't been square—"

Saving Almost Naked Russians From Death From Cold Problem For Doctors; Hoover Plans Aid

American relatives and friends of the scantily clad in Russia and the Ukraine are hurrying relief to the clothing needy through the clothing material package plan of the American Relief Administration. The first big shipment of textile packages bought by sympathetic persons in the United States has gone forward and Col William N Haskell, director of the A R A, in Russia has informed Herbert Hoover that they will be delivered immediately to the person or group for whom they have been designated

Heeding the plea of their relatives and friends who fear to face the hard Russian winter without clothing, hundreds bought clothing packages in the first few days of sale so that the A R A, could deliver them without loss of time. The intensive winter weather is now setting in throughout Russia. The packages are purchasable through the American Relief Administration headquarters at 42 Broadway, New York City

Especially are children in need of clothing. They are unable to leave their unheated homes in their rags to go to the American Relief Administration kitchens where they receive the only meal they are able to obtain

The clothing package plan is similar to the Hoover food remittance system whereby Americans sent food to friends and relatives abroad and saved millions of lives. The clothing packages not designated for any particular person will be forwarded to the most needy persons known by the A R A workers

One package, which costs twenty dollars, will practically equip a small family with clothing. Each package will contain nearly nine yards of dark wool cloth, enough for one suit of clothing for an adult or two garments for a child, four yards of lining, 16 yards of muslin sufficient for four suits of underwear, eight yards of flannelette sufficient for two men's shirts or women's shirt waists and buttons and thread to make up these garments. Many American banks throughout the United States have consented to receive and forward funds for clothing remittance packages

EASY TO DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

You Can Bring Back Color and Lustre With Sage Tea and Sulphur

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is mussy and troublesome. At little cost you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant.

Gray, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound and look years younger.

CHANGE OF LIFE

Florida Lady Was in a Miserable Condition, But Says She Found Cardui Helpful, and Got Well.

Altha, Fla.—In explaining how she found Cardui so helpful during change of life, Mrs. Ella M. Bailey, of Route 2, this place, said:

"I became so weakened it was an effort for me to get around. I knew what was the matter, but I felt like I couldn't give up.

"I just dragged, and I certainly was nervous. I was so restless I could not sit down long—yet so weak I couldn't get about. It is a most miserable and such a helpless feeling.

"I would get depressed and out of heart.

"I began to feel, after awhile, there was no use to try to get well. This is all wrong, for it makes a person worse.

"I had heard of Cardui, and thought it might strengthen me. A neighbor had used it with good results.

"I took one bottle (of Cardui), then I saw I wasn't so nervous, so kept it up.

"Gradually the nervousness left me. I began to eat and sleep better. Was soon well, and all right. Cardui did wonders for me, and I certainly do recommend it."

Thousands of other women have written, to tell of the beneficial results obtained by taking Cardui, and to recommend it to others.

SCHEDULE WORKED OUT FOR HOUSEWIFE

By Associated Press

LEXINGTON, Dec. 20.—According to statistics recently worked out by the department of home economics at the University of Kentucky the adage, "woman's work is never done," is conclusively disproved, for if she is truly efficient she may accomplish her task within the space of an eight-hour working day, instructors declare. During that time she will have walked between 4 2-3 and 7 miles, thereby obtaining enough exercise to prevent any normal woman from gaining superfluous flesh, the record shows.

The foregoing conclusions have been reached by Helen Porter Roberts of Lexington; Josephine Evans of Lebanon; Sarah Sequin and Nell Hank of Paducah, students of home economics who have recently completed an eight weeks residence in the practice house. These figures are based on the use of more than the ordinary number of labor saving devices such as kitchen cabinets, folding beds, etc

Averages worked out show that 26.4 minutes should suffice for the preparation of breakfast, with a distance limit of three-fourths mile Luncheon should be prepared in 41 1-4 minutes during which ceremony not more than one-half mile should be walked. Dinner, being the heaviest meal of the day, requires one hour and twenty-nine minutes and a hike of between two-thirds and one and one-fourth miles for its preparation. In marketing and the heavy cleaning of the house, between two and two and one-half miles were walked for the completion of each task.

The heavy cleaning need only to be done on Saturdays and in the usual light cleaning on other days only one mile is covered and that in an hour and ten minutes, according to the students.

THREE ROYAL WIDOWS TO SPEND CHRISTMAS TOGETHER

By Associated Press

LONDON, Dec. 19.—Two dowager Queens and one Dowager Empress of Europe, the widows of former kings of England and Denmark, and an emperor of Russia, are to spend the Christmas holidays together in England. Dowager Queen Louise of Denmark, widow of King Frederick VIII who died in 1912, and Dowager Empress Maria Feodorovna, of Russia, widow of Emperor Elexander III, who died in 1894 will be the guests of King Edward VII, who died in 1910. Those who follow the annals of royalty say this is the first time, probably in history, that three widowed queens have thus come together.

Maria Feodorvna is a younger sister of Alexandra, and Louise is a sister-in-law of both. Hence it will be a family reunion. Maria Feodorovna arrived in England recently and celebrated her seventy-fifth birthday, November 26, as a guest of her sister. She has been living for the past two years in Denmark—she was originally a Danish princess Dagmar—but she will now remain in England for several weeks. Queen Louise, who is 71 years old, is expected at Sandringham a few days after Christmas.

There will be no public or social functions in honor of the royal guests, but during the Christmas season King George and the entire royal family will spend a few days with Queen Alexandra and their aunts.

The meeting of Queen Alexandra, who is 78 years old, and her sister, will be more or less touching as the Queen is known to be very distressed at the plight of her sister, who has been rapidly declining in health since the killing of her son, who was Emperor Nicholas, by the Bolsheviki at Ekaterinburg in the summer of 1918.

DANISH LABORERS SEEKING OPPORTUNITIES ABROAD

By Associated Press

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 29.—Owing to the industrial depression and unemployment in Denmark, an organized emigration plan has been worked out by the government with Nicaragua and Colombia under which these countries will accept Danish immigrants and give them assistance in settling

Another similar agreement is pending with France, under which Denmark will participate in the colonization of Madagascar According to the plan announced in the Danish papers, France has made an offer to start the public works to be carried out by the Danish engineers, to undertake forest work with Danish farmers. The Danish settlers are to be permitted to organize their own schools and communities so as to retain their nationality.

A committee of French and Danish experts will go to Madagascar to investigate the plan, after which the Danish Rigsdag will consider it.

EMPLOYERS WOULD DO AWAY WITH THE 8 HOUR DAY

Managers Constantly Feel Out Employes on 10-Hour Day Would Give Them Goods For Pay.

HUGO STINES SCORED BY SOCIAL DEMOCRAT

By Milton Bronner

BERLIN, Dec. 20.—Imagine John D. Rockefeller Sr., sitting in the house of representatives at Washington and listening to a speech by a labor leader like Sam Gompers, also a congressman, and—

You have some idea of what it is like to see Germany's industrial colossus, Hugo Stinnes, sitting in the Reichstag and hearing himself denounced by a Social Democratic leader.

The Rockefeller of Germany, the man who owns mines, steel works, street railway systems, banks and newspapers, also finds time to be a member of the German legislative body.

I heard him vigorously scored by Dr. Rudolph Breitschied, one of the intellectuals in the Social Democratic Party, the biggest party numerically in Germany.

Clashing Interests.

It was a never-to-be-forgotten scene, not only because of the personality of the men involved, but because they represent clashing interests in what is looked upon as one of the most important and bitterly contested problems of present-day Germany.

Breitscheid started out by excoriating the German People's Party as a Stinnes party.

"I warn you," said Breitscheid, pointing a long menacing finger at Stinnes, "that the working men and women of Germany will not allow you and your kind to tear down the eight-hour law or to destroy the eight-hour principle."

All the time Breitscheid is speaking, Stinnes shows that the dynamic existence he has been leading is piling up vast riches has begun to tell on him. His dead white face never shows a trace of color his hands are never still.

Stinnes did not reply to Breitscheid. He simply listened.

One of the first things the working classes won in Germany, when the republic was established, was the enactment into organic law of the 8-hour statute.

Eight Hours?

Managers of great industrial plants have always sneered it was merely an excuse to work more than eight hours and get double pay for overtime.

Not long ago, at a meeting of German industrialists Stinnes made a speech in which he said if the German mark was ever to be stabilized, if Germany was to pay the reparations demanded by the allies and thus get rid of the armies of occupation, if she was ever to set her own house in order, she would have to produce more goods and to do this her people would have to work longer hours.

He said no one would dream of disturbing the letter of the German 8-hour law, but German workmen would simply have to make up their minds that for the next 10 or 15 years they would have to work at least 10 hours a day.

No Extra Pay.

And he didn't stress very strongly anything about getting extra pay for extra hours.

This speech was at once taken up as a challenge by the labor forces all over the country. There are perhaps 12 million men and women who belong to labor unions. And the most of them are afflicted either with the Social Democratic, the Centre, the Democratic or the Communist parties—which together have a big majority in the Reichstag.

The Social Democratic party as a party formally declared itself against any tampering with the eight-hour law or the eight-hour principle.

But the Stinnes proposition isn't dead yet. Stinnes is a bulldog for pertinacity.

Two Propositions.

In the meantime other big employers of labor have been feeling out their workmen with two new propositions.

First—they would continue to pay their men for the regular eight-hour day. But for the extra two hours they would pay them in goods. For instance, a worker in a sugar refinery would be paid overtime in sugar; a worker in a flour mill in flour.

Second—Payment in products is obviously impossible in many industries. For instance, an employe in a rolling mill wouldn't want to be paid with a steel bar. In such cases employers would pay the men their overtime in marks.

CONCENTRATION OF LIQUOR PROBLEM

OWENSBORO, Dec. 19.—Complications in the execution of the order designating the Glenmore and the Hill and Hill warehouses here as liquor concentration points for whiskey in this district both as plans for the removal advance and revenue and liquor men are puzzled over the situation which has resulted.

Absence of ruling forcing owners of whiskey in warehouses other than those named to remove it is the first obstacle. Inconvenience and losses which it is said will accrue from such transfers are also pointed out.

There are about 30,000 barrels of whiskey at Glenmore, possible 11,000 barrels at Hill and Hill warehouses, and approximately 5,890 barrels in other warehouses, it has been learned.

Full protection through bonds for its safety would be the first demand of its owners to give consent to removal. Also, charges which have resulted from long storage would have to be liquidated. These cannot be less than $25 per barrel, it is thought, including taxes, storage and insurance.

Loss through leakage also is to be figured, as barrels full when placed in storage are but two-thirds full now are to natural evaporation staves have parted at the top of the barrels, requiring new and expensive cooperage before removal, and new cooperage would result in a loss of at least a gallon per barrel being absorbed by the new dry wood, it is said.

Liquor stored in the Hill and Hill plant once owned by the Rock Spring Distilling Company, was sold several years ago to William Lockett, Cincinnati broker. With the sale went the stipulation that the whiskey would be stored in the warehouse, although title to the warehouse remained with Silas Rosenfield, former owner.

With the order naming the plant a concentration warehouse, Mr. Rosenfield may have to operate a warehouse to shelter whiskey belonging to others as well, regardless of his wishes.

The local revenue office is working on the matter.

What Would Christmas Be Without The Railroads?

Next Monday, the cares of business, the problems of political adjustments, the discussions of employers with employees—all will be temporarily forgotten in the celebration of CHRISTMAS—that one day in all the year when good cheer rules supreme and the hearts of men and women turn to making each other happy.

The discussion of Christmas is hardly the theme for the management of a great railroad to use in one of its advertising bulletins, and yet the story of the importance of modern railroads to Christmas enjoyment is interesting to every reader of this newspaper.

The fruits, candies, and toys which the little ones take from their stockings early Christmas morning; the automobile that will bring joy to all the family; the new furs for mother, the piano for daughter, the pipe and slippers for dad—even the warming fuel from Kentucky, Tennessee, and Alabama coal fields, and the dinner, from its celery, olives and oysters from the Gulf Coast, to its Kentucky or Tennessee grown turkey, and finally its cranberries and plum pudding from New England—are all made possible by the modern American railroad.

At all times bringing to your door the necessities as well as the luxuries of life,—the railroad is the largest single contributing factor to your enjoyment of Christmas.

The Season's Greetings

are herewith extended to the readers of this newspaper by every employee of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad. May the year of 1923 and all that are to follow find the same spirit of friendly co-operation between the public and this railroad that has existed during 1922.

BLONDS OUST BRUNET VAMPS

Broadway Star And Blond Says Professional Vamp Only Myth; Cleopatra Had Red Hair.

What's a Vamp?

A vamp is a woman who tries to get another woman's husband.—Henry Krahn, policeman.

A vamp is a woman who tries to attract women in proportion to the size of their pocketbooks.—MARIE WRIGHT, restaurant proprietor.

A vamp is any woman, married or single, who takes and takes and never gives.—MIKE BERLIN, stenographer.

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—Has the vamp of the dark eyes, slicked black hair and long jade earrings lost her lure?

Has she been forced to take a back seat by her fairer rival—the decided blond?

It seems so, for the interesting party of the third part who gets most of the publicity when the cases of Man vs. Wife are aired in court these days is usually light-haired and blue-eyed.

Black-Clad Vamp Gone

No, as a breaker of hearts and a fomenter of domestic difficulties the lady with the clinging black gown and the uplifted shoulder blade is taking the one-two-three.

In fact, says Jeanne Eagels, Broadway star and a blond herself.

"The professional vamp was only a myth anyway. Cleopatra had red hair and, I imagine, quite a nice disposition. She'd have to have a nice disposition or the men wouldn't like her.

"If blonds seem to predominate over the affections of men I would attribute it to the fact that their dispositions are milder. If I were going to be a professional vamp, it would be something like this:

Dress well.
Be as brainy as you can
Be as beautiful as you can.
Never, never, lose your temper.
And give your jade earrings to the ash man.

Hope Isn't Lost

But the dark-haired vamp needn't give up all hope.

Dr. S. A. Tannenbaum, noted psycho-analyst, comes to her rescue.

"If we could get a complete list of vampires through all history," he says "we would probably find that it is 50-50 between the blonds and brunets.

"At different times one, or the other, of these colors would be in favor. The vamp would adopt the popular style.

"These women want to keep up with the latest in their make-up, dress and appeal.

"Light colors seem to be in the ascendency now, so we have the predominance of blonds.

"But the color has little to do with their lure."

MEXICAN KIDDIES KNOW SANTA CLAUS

Suspended Cup Used For Gifts Instead of Christmas Tree, Says Consul.

By Associated Press.

DALLAS, TEX., Dec 20.—Mexican children in Texas know Santa Claus as well as their American playmates, only in many of the Mexican households he leaves his gifts in a pinata, or earthen cup suspended from the ceiling instead of upon a Christmas tree, according to Alejandro Lubbert, Mexican consul here, describing the manner of celebrating the holiday season in some Mexican homes.

"The pinata, filled with presents, is broken by children, who are blindfolded and beat the air with long sticks, trying to locate the gift cup," says Mr. Lubbert.

"The season of pasada also is observed for nine days prior to Christmas, which was handed down from the story of Mary and Joseph going from house to house, seeking a place for the Christ Child to be born. Formerly nine intimate held pasada family observance as at their various homes, one each evening, and upon each occasion a pinata was broken. Now the custom has somewhat changed. Frequently societies, during the season of pasada, have pinata parties at which a delegation of the prettiest girls, properly blindfolded, break the pinata holding gifts for all.

CHIEF OF POLICE ARESTED YESTERDAY

Night Chief Of LaFollette Held For Disturbing Peace At Hotel.

Sid Lay, night chief-of-police at La Follette and H. M. Brown were detained at the police headquarters yesterday afternoon for an alleged disturbance at the Cumberland hotel. The men were charged with flourishing deadly weapons and disorderly conduct. Upon making a cash bond they were released about 8 o'clock last night.

It is said that Brown, the chief, and an unknown man entered the hotel in an apparently intoxicated state. It seems that the men became angry, drew their guns and began to flourish them.

The police department was immediately notified and Policeman Yeary and DeBusk went to the scene and placed Sid Lay and H. M. Brown under arrest. The other man escaped.

A suit of clothes, an overcoat and a suit-case were stolen from the room of Harry Goodfriend over the Ginsburg department store Saturday night. The intruder evidently went about his business in a very cool manner as evidence of his having smoked a cigarette were present. The door of the room had not been locked. The police department were notified of the missing articles but have not recovered them.

LIGHT THEATRICALS HAVE POPULARITY IN HAPPY PAREE

Movie Palaces Outstripped Last Year By Theatres Showing Comedies and Opera Comique.

BEAUCOUP FRANCS GO FOR LIGHTER SHOWS

By Associated Press

PARIS, Dec. 20.—The people of Paris spend a quarter of a billion francs yearly on theatres and motion pictures, and do not care to do much heavy thinking during the process. Government statistics on last year's receipts of every playhouse in Paris warrants these statements, and at the same time supply interesting information about what pleases the tired business man of France and his non-voting wife.

Motion picture houses, which outnumber the regular theaters three to one, took in 50,000,000 francs in 1919, rather more than did the theatres, and a third of the total amusement receipts. Last year, however, the theatres took first place with receipts of 86,000,000 francs, 11,000,000 more than the movies. This increase seems to be due largely to the fact that the theatregoers have modified their oppositional attitude toward high prices of admission and also by a revival of the typically light and racy play.

The governmentsubsidized opera, and the Opera Comique, headed the list, with the largest receipts, each taking in more than 9,000,000 francs last year and the serious Comedie Francaise so did well with 6,000,000 francs, but these institutions are virtually without competition in their field and they represent a big portion of the money paid for the classics.

The Frolies-Bergeres, where the big scenes always hinge on the presentation of a group of handsome show girls, tops the list of theatres, exceeding even the famous Comedie Francaise. The next in line among the dramatic houses is the Palais Royal, which always pursues a policy of giving highly spiced comedies of family life.

JONES HELD FOR J. BULL MURDER

Grounds For Arrest Not Given Out—Date Of Preliminary Not Yet Set.

Robert VanBebber, deputy sheriff, made the arrest near the young man's home at Four Mile Branch. The grounds upon which he was arrested have not been announced by the officers, and the date for his preliminary hearing has not been set.

The suspect is reported not to have made any statement in regard to the case. He is about 21 years old.

KIWANIS CLUB WILL ELECT OFFICERS TOMORROW

Election of officers will take place at the meeting of the Kiwanis club which will be held in the grill room of the Cumberland tomorrow. Other business of the club will be transacted.

T Russ Hill will be chairman of the day. It is expected that questions of local interest and the plans of the club for the coming year will be discussed.

In view of the fact that there will be an election of officers and that it is near Christmas, a large attendance and a good time are expected at the meeting.

DOBBIN CHEAPEST MOTIVE POWER

By Associated Press

PURDUE, IND., Dec. 20.—The cheapest way to plow an acre of ground today is with a horse and the best way to keep the boys on the farm is to give them good horses to drive, is the assertion of George I. Christie, director of the Indiana Experiment station here. The horse, in this gasoline period, also is recognized as the most efficient and economic motive power for short hauls, he declares.

"The boys of today," said Mr. Christie, "know all about spark plugs and carburetors, they know all about motor cars, but when it comes to a horse they lack the knowledge of what to feed him, and how to care for him. If you will put good horses on the farm you will create a love for them and the boys will stay.

"The fall in price of farm products has forced the farmer to consider the economics of agriculture and has made him consider the horse more seriously with the result that the horse is coming back onto the farm since he consumes what is raised and makes for cheap motive power.

"We have formed Calf clubs all thorgh the states. Why not organize Colt clubs. It will require effort but it must be done. We must develop the business of raising more colts and we must show that the horse has great economic value on the farm. If this is done we will not only have rendered a wonderful service but will have given the farmer the chance to make some of his just profits."
